Take A Closer Look At Eastwood

It isn't the brick and mortar, the parking lots and classrooms, the gym and cafeteria that make up Eastwood. EHS is people. This is the closer look that brings the year's events into proper view. Without people there would be no Eastwood.

Far-sighted taxpayers, started us in the right direction by planning a new school to meet the growing needs of a growing nation. The building was completed in 1962 and the first graduating class was out into the world.

The year 1963 brought new adventures. Golf was added to the list of sports and the second musical, "Oklahoma," was produced.

1964 has carried on traditions as well as adding a few new ones. Queens were elected, athletic schedules completed and the everyday classroom routine rolled on. New students found friendship in the halls of EHS, while old acquaintances hashed over past history.

Clubs were reorganized, the curriculum enlarged and unfamiliar faces appeared on the teaching staff. Yes! These and more make up the Closer Look at Eastwood.

Administration is a many-faceted and most important phase in the even flow of school affairs. Besides the never-ending effort to improve the curriculum and activities of the school in general, the job includes developing individual schedules and providing personal guidance and counseling to each of the many students who enter the halls of learning.

During the school day, the office is always open and the administration is always willing to help those who enter its doors for assistance.

Behind those who come in direct contact with the students is a collective body of area citizens who serve on the board of education. These, who unselfishly devote their services to the effective administration of the school, are the managing body and backbone of the school system.

Eastwood Offers An Enriched Program

Dallas E. Gardner

Superintendent's Message

Another chapter in the short history of the Eastwood School District is recorded in this 1964 edition of the Aquila. Another job well done.

Each year as a copy of this outstanding publication is accepted by the administration in behalf of those governing the local educational program, there is a feeling of pride in the past and a stronger faith in the future.

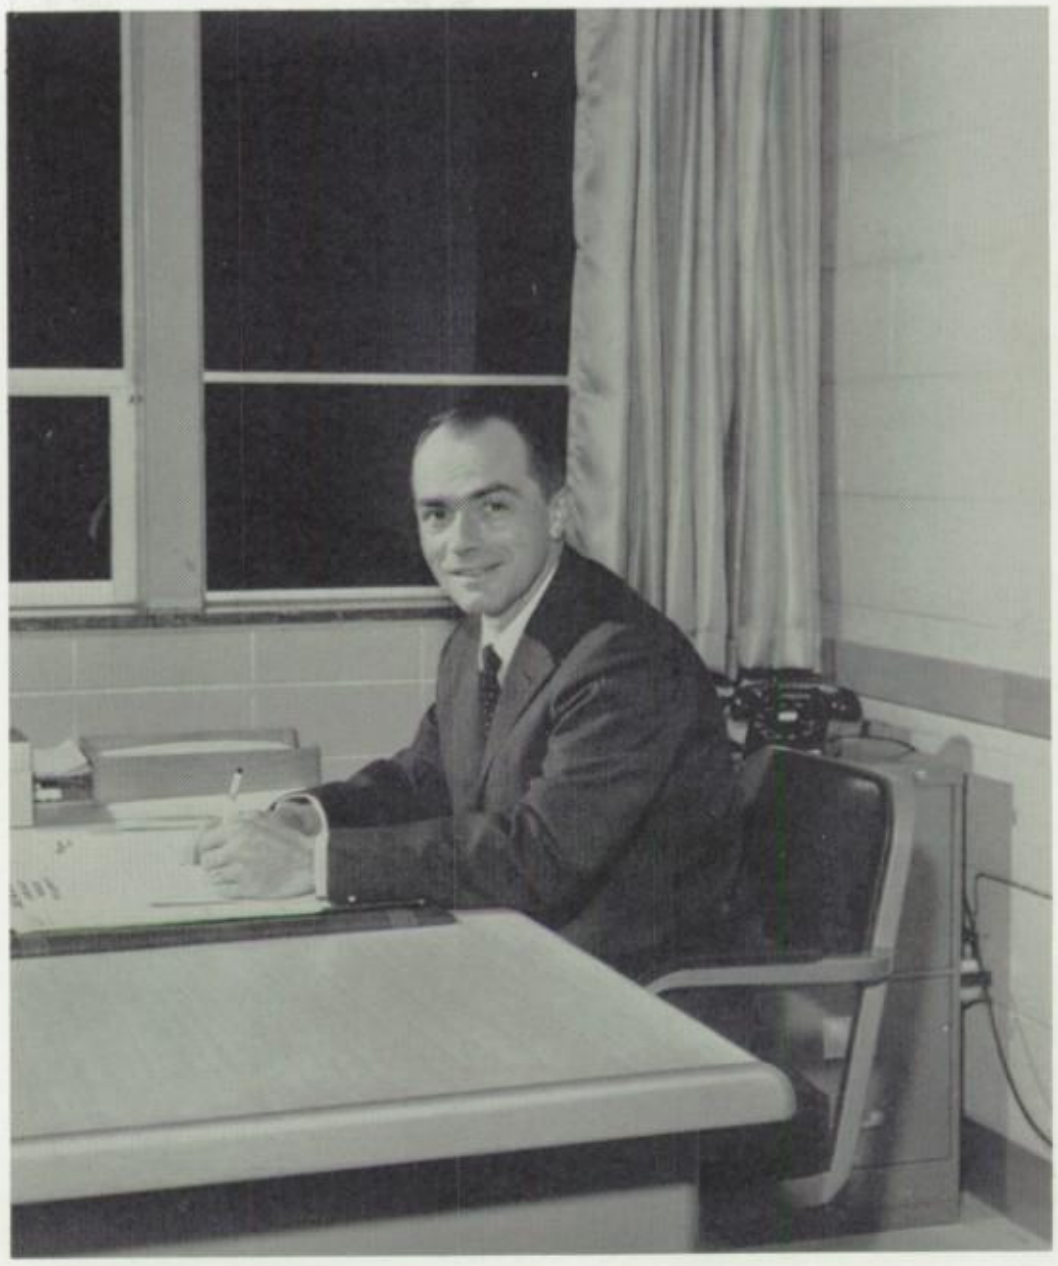
As we review the pages of the 1964 yearbook we acknowledge this community which has exhibited its respect for education and intellectual discipline as essential to personal and national purpose, and to others who are aware that a rich educational experience for all youth is the ultimate in a democratic society.

Your generation will be faced with increased emphasis on educational achievement. More emphasis on culture. More advancement in technology and automation and more problems leading to greater responsibilities for all.

Through continuous planning, we shall strive to meet our obligations and enrich the life of every youth in this district in mind, body, and spirit.

Today's Youth Are Challenged

Richard E. Lowrie



H. S. Principal's Message

The age in which we are living is one of rapid technological change. Automation and electronic digital computers are replacing workers by the hundreds of thousands. Travel by jet has shrunk the earth to a small fraction of its former size, bringing us ever closer to our "neighbors" in countries throughout the world. Rockets, missiles, and other nuclear weapons, capable of destroying a large city in minutes, keep us ever mindful that peace is an extremely delicate, intangible thing.

The only logical solution to these and other physical and social problems facing our society today is a sound educational system founded on fundamental concepts and dedicated to the peaceful dissemination of knowledge to all.

To the members of the class of 1964, we wish you well; whether you have chosen to continue your formal education from this point or embark upon a vocation. Your challenge is great; your responsibilities are even greater.

To the underclassmen: plan ahead, choose wisely, and pursue your choice with fervor. The future of our country, indeed the future of the world, rests in your hands.

May God be with you.

Closer Look At Academics

In order for a yearbook to be a complete record of school life, it should encompass all activities. All too often, the extracurricular part is overemphasized and the classrooms are hidden behind a few formal pictures.

This year the Staff has attempted to put the academics in its rightful place by establishing a separate division to show the truly important aspect of a school.

To meet the needs of the individual student, Eastwood offers four educational programs: college-preparatory, business, general and vocational.

Every student is able to choose the one program designed to accommodate his college and/or career plans. More and more new courses are being offered in the ever-expanding curriculum.

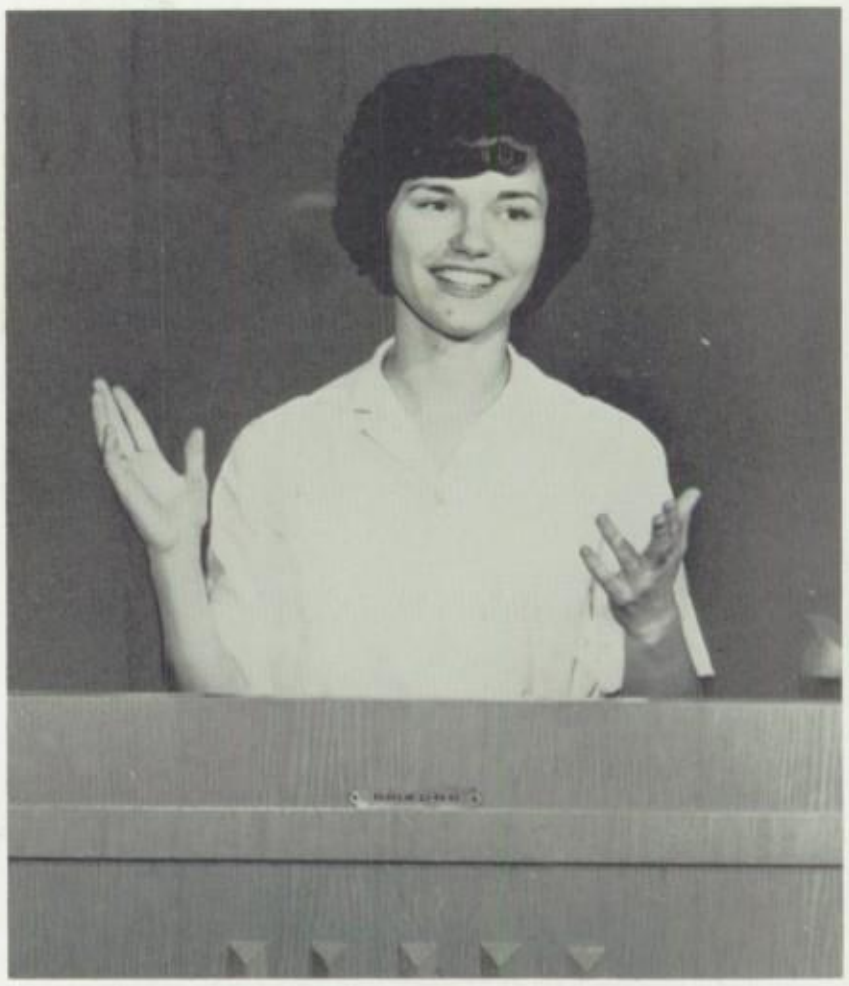
Gap In A Troubled World

English, Latin, French, speech, drama, and journalism are offered in the Language Department.

Through the knowledge of a foreign language one becomes more proficient in English, as well as broadening one's cultural background.

Speech and drama help to develop self-confidence.

Journalism trains students to find, write and edit good copy so as to produce a school newspaper through the theory and practice in the fundamentals of news-writing.



R. Dunipace practices public address.

Mrs. Ridenour stresses the importance of Latin derivatives.

EHS's 1964 science program was stepped up to meet the needs of the space age. Students in the accelerated program take general science in the eighth grade, biology in the ninth, chemistry in the tenth, physics in the eleventh and advanced chemistry in the twelfth.

Adequate lab facilities invite students to probe into the unknowns and discover for themselves, scientific facts.

Organic specimens are used in biological studies.

V. Ehmke and G. McCoy solve trig problems before a test.

Exacting minds rise to meet the challenge of mathematics. Trigonometry awaits those students who have surmounted the obstacles of algebra I, II, plane and solid geometry.

Again the accelerated program offers algebra III to seniors.

This course of study should provide a suitable foundation upon which to build any math career.

Boys, primarily interested in engineering, comprise most of the classes; but there are a few girls who master the math program, too.

Future mathematicians concentrate on illustrated examples.

Social Studies Interpret World Problems

People influence environment and through the study of social subjects, students see the cycles of social change. They also gain an understanding of how people think, feel and act.

The study of government furnishes practical information of the inside workings of the political world and its many subdivisions. It gives students a picture of the ideal citizen: voting, active, and informed about the local, state and national government.

Health finds its way into the realm of social studies as students discuss such timely topics as MEDICARE.

Students portray the after-effects of hasty marriages and loose living.

Business Prepares Students To Perform Efficiently

Besides teaching the fundamentals, typing, general business, bookkeeping, shorthand and secretarial training help students to think logically, and increase their efficiency and accuracy as they perform everyday tasks in the business world.

Students with a flair for office work, computation, and typing find their outlet in this department, later to become a vital part of modern, industrial America, or as a foundation to further their education in business.

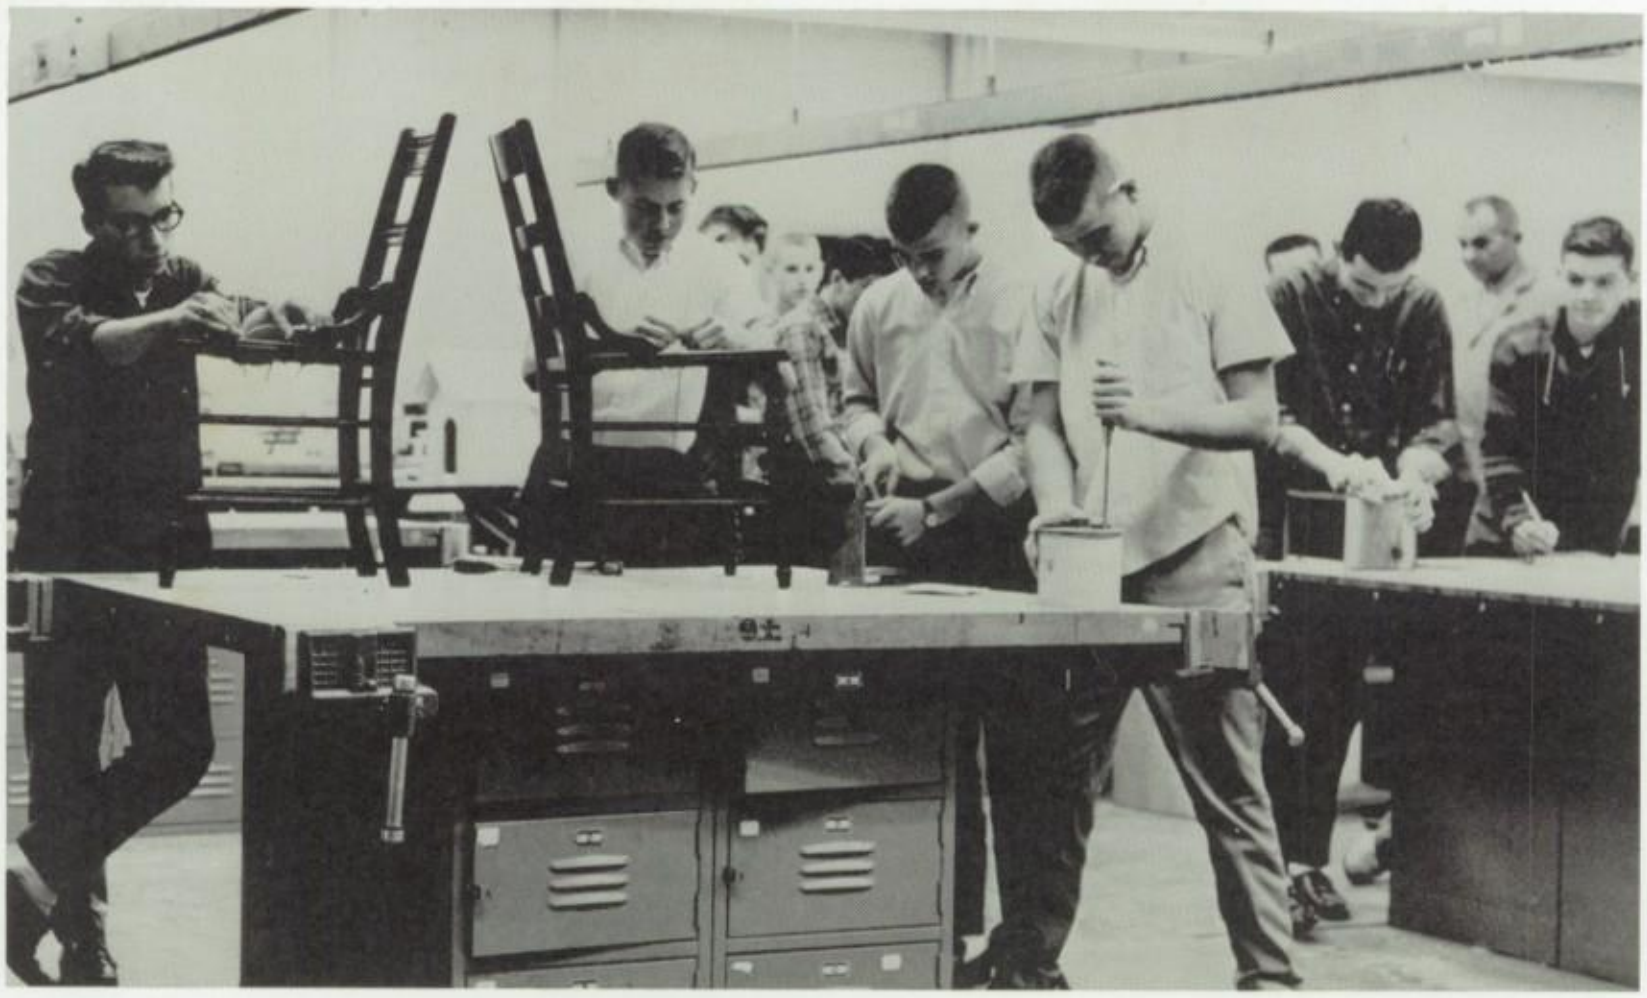
Exacting Plans Create Better Finished Products



Repairing old chairs in Industrial Arts

Almost anything from cedar chests to surfboards can be beautifully crafted from wood. Confirmation of this has been shown in the periodic display cases of the industrial arts room. The unique grains of maple, birch, cherry, walnut, and other products of the forest are here sanded and lacquered meticulously to a gleaming perfection.

Eastwood's agriculture students (future farmers) learn about the latest scientific methods in farming, care of livestock, and maintenance of equipment in the vo-ag department.

At the beginning of each school year each boy selects a project to be completed by him, in either agriculture or livestock, and is graded as he progresses.

Over the summer the boys may exhibit their projects at the local, county and state fairs.

The local vo-ag program is constructed to provide three-fold benefits. A vo-ag major may elect to go directly into farming, or continue his training at a state university in vo-ag or agri-business.

Besides the technical training, membership in the vo-ag organization (FFA), and active participation in its program, is invaluable.

Vo-ag offers welding facilities to interested students.

D. Grabenstetter works on a sewing project.

Around Eastwood, everyone knows when the home economics girls are working on a cooking unit - luscious aromas flow down the halls like reaching fingers.

Cooking is only one of the functions taught in this department; sewing, grooming, home decorating, and general organizing of an efficient home are learned.

These girls, after three years of vocational training, should be well-equipped for further specializing or efficient home makers.

Eager, Loving Hands Perform Homemaking Tasks

Studying color co-ordination assists in planning model rooms.

HERBERT STRAYER

With the ever increasing number of accidents on the highways, it is vital to equip the future drivers with adequate technical information and experience for safe driving.

Students in this course are informed, and given an opportunity to practice the proper driving techniques. Watching the students drive, the driver's education instructor is able to nip in-the-bud what could become a bad driving habit.

Giving students an understanding of the mechanics of a car and a sound foundation of driving know-how should help greatly in the prevention of accidents.

Expression: Through Oils And Physical Conditioning

The beauties of nature and our culture, come to be appreciated through training, study, and practice by the art students, as figments of their imagination become realities.

A dab of color, a swish of the brush, a vision, and more than a little patience, go into the creation of the artists of tomorrow.

Not only the mind, but also the body must be conditioned, for mental alertness is directly related to physical fitness. The purpose of this program is to educate a student as to proper exercises and recreation to be practiced throughout one's lifetime.

Field hockey, football, baseball, track and archery are sports played outside when the weather is warm. Indoors, when the blustery winds blow; volleyball, basketball, tumbling, wrestling, and dodgeball are enjoyed in the gym.

Diligent Practice Creates Great Musicians

Music is one of the most universal of all languages. Man has always found solace, joy and relaxation through the medium of music.

Serious instrumentalists daily carry their instruments home and practice. Public concerts show the results of concentrated effort. Almost 80 strong, the Eastwood band and its component parts enjoy renewed popularity because of their public appearances.

Voices are heard on the air . . . it is choral hour. Voices of the mixed chorus combine into one melodious tone. Approximately 125 girls and boys participate in one or more choral groups, each rehearsing regularly each week. Besides a Christmas and Spring Concert the choruses provide the background for the school musical dramas.

Working on solos, ensembles and choruses completes the program of the choral department.

Flutists S. Schellhase, K. Miller and S. Burkholder intently study the score.

School Life, which often is considered relatively unimportant, plays an influential role in the lives of the students.

Besides making the everyday school day a little more pleasurable, school life educates students for their future vocation, whether it be as a college student or an employee in industry.

These moments consist of attending athletic events, drama rehearsals, assembly programs, living under administrative rules, and everyday routine, in which each and every student participates.

These serious activities, which sometimes prove to be just a little bit on the lighter side, helps the graduating student who is often baffled and bewildered by the grown-up world he enters.

These all-important moments bring students closer together, mold and shape their lives and give them a wider perspective and outlook on life.

Football Queen And Her Court Honored

Dolly Kazmaier, Football Queen, '63.

Dolly Kazmaier, pretty 5'4, brown eyed senior, was crowned Football Homecoming Queen September 20, at the Eagles'-Elmwood game.

She was crowned by Marlene Frank, '62 queen before a crowd of 1500.

Queen Dolly's attendants were Lynette Haar, senior, escorted by William Caughey; Constance Thatcher, junior, escorted by Robert Robinson; Patricia Gurtzweiler, sophomore, escorted by Earl Jensen; and Alice Kahlenberg, freshman, escorted by Gary Haas. Dolly was escorted by Lynn Witker and Norman Eckle escorted Marlene.

Queen Dolly was presented a bouquet of roses by Renald Radeloff, tri-captain, and the traditional necklace pendant by Glenn McCoy, also tri-captain.

Queen Dolly's hopes were fulfilled with the Eagles' victory over the Elmwood Royals. She reigned supremely over the dance that climaxed the Homecoming.

Queen And Her Court Enjoy Victorious Reign

Tresa Dusing, blonde, hazel-eyed senior, was crowned the 1964 basketball homecoming queen between the reserve and varsity games with Maumee.

Tresa was crowned by Rosalie Eiler, '63 senior attendant as the 1963 queen, Linda Berringer, was unable to attend.

Queen Tresa's attendants were Sandra Cross, senior, escorted by Tom Reitzel; Mary Rolf, junior, escorted by Ronald Chaffee; Linda Camp, sophomore, escorted by Thomas Lintner; Melany Thompson, freshman, escorted by Thomas Brick. Queen Tresa's escort was James Hillabrand. Glen McCoy escorted Rosalie.

Tresa received the traditional necklace pendant, presented by Co-Captain Dennis Rolf.

Lynn Witker, Co-Captain, presented Queen Tresa with a bouquet of long-stemmed red roses and the traditional kiss.

Winning the game over Maumee, a big league upset, made the homecoming perfect.

Memories Of Eastwood High School For Years To Come;

To break the monotony of the regular academic school day, many activities are planned - many are not.

Lunch is the most popular way of livening up the steady schedule of classes. In the cafeteria the students relax and visit with their friends while dining. Noon movies are shown in the auditorium daily, for those who seek some entertainment rather than the cafeteria chit-chat.

The word gets around quickly when the school's official photographer, Mr. Robert Abraham, arrives. "Oh, boy! We get out of classes for pictures!"

Snowy mornings have proven to be the students' favorite friend. As the 'No school' announcement goes over the air, via radio, many 'disappointed' pupils crawl back into bed to pick up the dream the alarm clock or mother's call interrupted.

Eastwood's Marching Band performs at half-time.

Eastwood sponsors eight major sports: football, basketball, track, wrestling, golf, baseball, cross-country, and bowling.

Through the emphasis of teamwork, sportsmanship, physical fitness, competition, and pride of accomplishment, the boys develop physically, mentally, and emotionally.

The athletic program at EHS is wholly self-supporting, except for supplementation by the Athletic Boosters Club.

The athletic program is annually opened by the Athletic Boosters sponsoring an ox roast followed by a preliminary football scrimmage.

Some of Eastwood's athletes receive scholarships enabling them to participate in college sports.

Approximately two out of three boys participate actively in at least one phase of the athletic program.

Eastwood Athletes Cover Ground

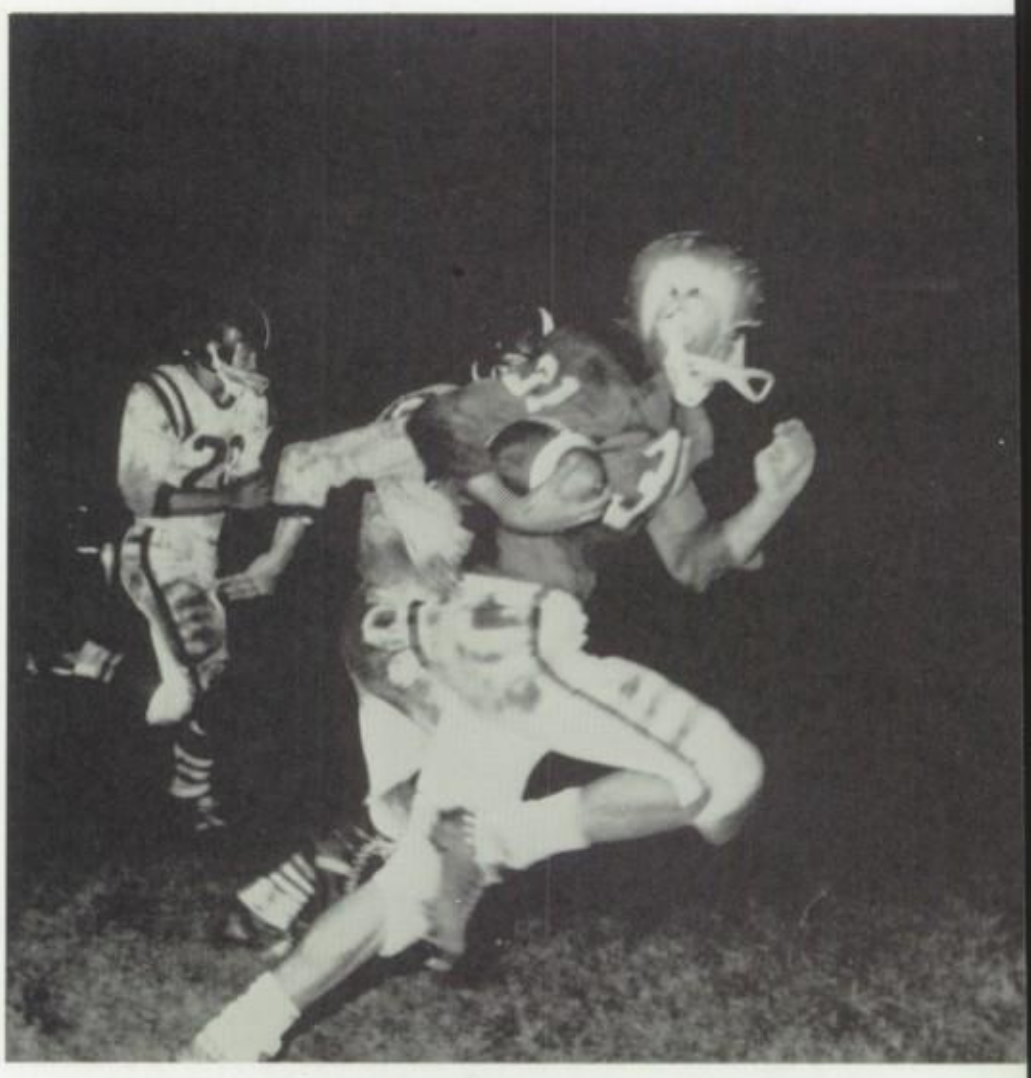
Eastwood varsity opened its 1963 football campaign with a surprise 8-6 victory over Perrysburg. With the team's spirit high, they defeated a worthy foe, Lake, 20-0.

In their annual "Battle of the Woods" with Elmwood, the boys posted another victory, 12-0, before a delighted homecoming crowd.

The Eagles were now 3-0 in the NLL; but against Anthony Wayne they met their first setback, 12-0. Then came Rossford, the growling Bulldogs, who clawed Eastwood 46-20 for their second defeat. On came the Panthers of Maumee and again the Eagles were defeated, 42-20. With Genoa, Eastwood wasn't able to slip the losing habit, and dropped a 6-0 decision.

Finally, at North Baltimore, the boys started to move and pulled away with a lopsided 36-0 victory.

In the last league contest, the boys were determined to make this a winning season, and they did by defeating Springfield Local, 14-8. The mighty Eagles ended the season 5-4, good enough for 5th place in the league.



D. Rolf gains yardage on a sideline play.

The freshmen squad, composed of twenty-seven players, showed what Eastwood's varsity should look like in just a few years.

The boys gave their opponents some tough competition. Eastwood's record should improve with these lads in the varsity lineup.

The Eastwood wrestlers entered the season with one returning letterman, Jim Lafferty, a transfer from Lake. Jim turned out to be the team's outstanding wrestler.

This season was the first for Eastwood in the Northern Lakes League. Also the first full schedule for the team.

Next year looks to be a better year as graduation will take only two boys, Jim Hillabrand and Dick Haas.

The team worked and practiced hard all season and may surprise a few opponents next year.

The Eastwood varsity basketball team, under the direction of Coach Robert Dawson, experienced a rewarding, although at times somewhat frustrating, season.

The team was constantly plagued with accidents and illnesses, and because of this, the starting line-up was continually being changed.

The basketball season paralleled that of football - both teams started well, but lost ground as the season progressed.

The varsity, losing their opening game with Clay 54-35, redeemed itself by winning over Lake 57-67, Springfield 45-65, and Lakota 44-52.

The Eagles lost to Elmwood 59-44, but won from Genoa 68-84. At this point, the varsity was in a four-way tie for second place in the NLL until a stroke of bad luck hit them. Five straight losses came up, and the league standing went down the drain. Rogers 65-44, Elmwood 63-42, Lake 66-49, Bowling Green, and Perrysburg 63-60 all plucked the Eagles' feathers.

Eastwood lost to Maumee 58-48, in the first match of tournament play, abruptly ending the basketball season.

Coach Dawson points out flaw in previous play.

During a tight spot in the game, Coach Dawson could be seen with the typical pensive expression, the extended index finger, and finally the hopeless shake of the head as his moods changed according to the breaks of the game.

Cross Country Gets A Foothold At EHS

Cross Country is an excellent sport. This is the first year Eastwood has included it in its sports program.

The boys showed great improvement as the season progressed.

There were 25 boys out for the team. Fifteen of those 25 received letters.

Vernon Ward was named most-valuable runner and he also carried the best record.

"It takes a lot of desire and 'guts' to participate in Cross Country," stated Coach Dawson.

Take A

The music department is composed of two sections, choral and instrumental, each with many subdivisions.

Besides directing the mixed, girls' and boys' choruses, Mrs. Jennie Hobart, choral director, keeps a busy schedule rehearsing the numerous ensembles.

Closer Look At Music

Mr. Lawrence McCormic, band director, carries a comparable schedule. Besides directing the marching and concert band, Mr. McCormic has organized several other units. Pom-pom girls, and the band mascot, 'Edie,' are new additions this year.

A winter concert and spring concert was given in which the various sections performed.

Contests, concerts and guest performances add to the music department's accomplishments.

Trophy For 1963

There are eight units in the Eastwood marching band. It performed at the Clyde Fireman's Convention, Wood County Fair, and the Pemberville Fair.

Many new features were added to the band. Previous to the opening of school in September, Mr. McCormic ordered intensive practice for two weeks.

Pom-pom girls and the famed mascot 'Edie the Eagle' were added to the band. The band regularly performed at all of the football games. Some of the half-time show themes were Yankee Doodle, The King and I, and Oklahoma

The band also performed a precision dance and drill show. A winter band concert was held January 26, in which the concert and dance bands performed.

As the Aquila was sent to the printer, plans were being made to enter district and solo contests.

Approximately seventy band members marched through various formations in ten football shows and strutted along in exacting order during several parades in the fall. A trophy heralding "excellent performance," was earned at the Defiance College homecoming parade.

Leading the band in these performances were the majorettes, the pom-pom girls, and the banner carriers, all of whom contributed to the grandeur of the occasions.

Students and fans arose to the first bars of the new fight song, the lyrics of which were written by band director, Mr. Lawrence McCormic.

A Christmas party and several field trips were among the activities planned by the officers, Steven Marks, pres., Allen Oberdick, vice-pres., Dolly Kazmaier, sec., and the band senate.

To say that the choral department is active is putting it mild.

Mrs. Hobart had ten choral groups consisting of girls', boys' and mixed ensembles and choruses and a boys' octet.

Competing in contests is a major interest of the choral groups. These singing units are called upon for entertainment throughout the school year with special programs at Christmas and late spring.

A major production, the musical, 'My Fair Lady' was presented by the choral department and the drama club.

Regular meetings to plan and complete the Aquila were scheduled for every Wednesday after school.

Each editor, with the assistance of his helpers, met to plan their division which was assigned to him when the staff was organized last spring.

The editor, Kathleen Schuerman, senior, and business manager, Steven Marks, junior, attended a yearbook workshop at Indiana University last summer for the purpose of gathering some new ideas that would improve this year's yearbook.

To help finance the yearbook, advertisements were purchased by local and area businessmen and a magazine drive was held to help finance the yearbook, and to send students to workshops to further improve Eastwood's annuals.

Students participating in Drama Club are primarily interested in stage productions. Acting, property, stage, lighting, and make-up crews are stressed during the productions of the major performances.

This year "Teahouse of the August Moon" was the first play of the season, and provided the Club with intricate staging and make-up experience. Later in the season, the musical "My Fair Lady" was presented with the help of the music department.

A first this year for the Drama Club is the production of a children's play entitled "Once Upon A Clothesline." The cast performed for Eastwood elementary pupils and visited some area schools to present the play.

The enthusiastic response of Latin students to membership in the newly organized Latin Club substantiates the fact that the Latin Club is here to stay.

Approximately 40 students became charter members in order to come to a better understanding of the Roman ways of life and government.

The meetings are conducted monthly, fashioned after the Roman government system. Not all of the activities are serious, they also play games and sing songs in Latin. The Club was surnamed the SPQR, which means Senatus Populusque Romanus.

Volleyball serves as an indoor winter sport.

The Girls' Athletic Association (GAA) has been a part of Eastwood since it's beginning five years ago, and has steadily increased in size and activities. It is one of the largest organizations at Eastwood.

Each week the girls get together to play such games as softball, field hockey, volleyball, archery, basketball and tumbling. They participate in intramural and extramural competition throughout the year.

Each year the GAA sponsors a Spring formal. One of the two formal dances each year at Eastwood.

This year, besides the annual candy bar sale, the GAA picked apples, converted them into cider and sold it as one of its fund raising activities.

Council members decorate annual Christmas tree.

Eastwood's Student Council is one of the most active and influential organizations in school.

The members are elected by the student body. Four Students are elected from each class to represent that class in the council and the vice-presidents of each club automatically become members.

The student council meets weekly to discuss mutal problems, and often, joint meetings are set up with the faculty. At these joint meetings conflicts are analyzed and suggestions for their solutions are made.

Representatives to the Wood County Area Student Council (WCASC) are selected by each local council and meet monthly at area schools.

Varsity Club Assists The Athletic Program

Those boys, who have participated in a varsity sport the required number of hours needed to earn a varsity letter, are eligible for membership in the Varsity Club.

These boys assist the Athletic Boosters by selling programs at each home game, helping with parking cars, and assist in clearing the gymnasium floor at the halves between and after the games.

For these services, the Athletic Boosters help purchase necessary athletic equipment for the major sports.

It isn't all work though, the Varsity Club members also escort queens and attendants at the homecomings.

Programs! Programs! Get your programs!

Standing on the threshold of graduation, the seniors have prepared themselves for further education, a place in industry or business, or establishing an independent vocation, through which they can develop into responsible citizens.

Through the completion of the prescribed courses of study and participation in the extra-curricular activities, such as publications, clubs, dramas, music and athletics, they have developed lasting friendships and acquired the necessary knowledge upon which to build useful lives.

It is hoped that they have matured socially, mentally, and physically through the association with their classmates and teachers, as they worked to solve their problems.

Underclassmen have to overcome many obstacles during their formative years of high school. They have to schedule their time to include all of their studies and participation in the extracurricular activities in which they are interested.

Freshmen must choose wisely their courses of study, and taste lightly of club work, parcelling out the greater share of their time for studying.

Having overcome the obstacles of being freshmen, the sophomores have a little more self-confidence and thus take part in more class and club activities, ever mindful that they are laying another block in their educational foundation.

With their broadened courses of study, plus their stepped-up social life due to added participation in clubs, music, etc., the juniors set the stage for their final year in high school.

After three years of seemingly endless hours of study of subject matter and work in the various organizations, the underclassmen attain mental discipline, physical growth, and social adjustment in preparation for becoming seniors.

Closer Look At The Junior High

Junior High offers stepping stones that should become a solid foundation for future years.

One of the stepping stones is learning to develop a sense of self-reliance. Assignments are made with the expectation that they will be completed independently, by the student, without supervision.

Another stepping stone is developing respect for teachers and parents, and the friendships of fellow students. This is achieved through hard work, cooperation, and cheerfulness.

Still another stepping stone is the opportunity to develop one's capabilities and talents in non-academic areas through participation in extracurricular activities. Some of the activities are: band, student council, athletics, class officer, choral groups, and cheerleading.

These stepping stones properly placed will become building blocks upon which one's future rests.

Supervised Training Develops The Body And Mind

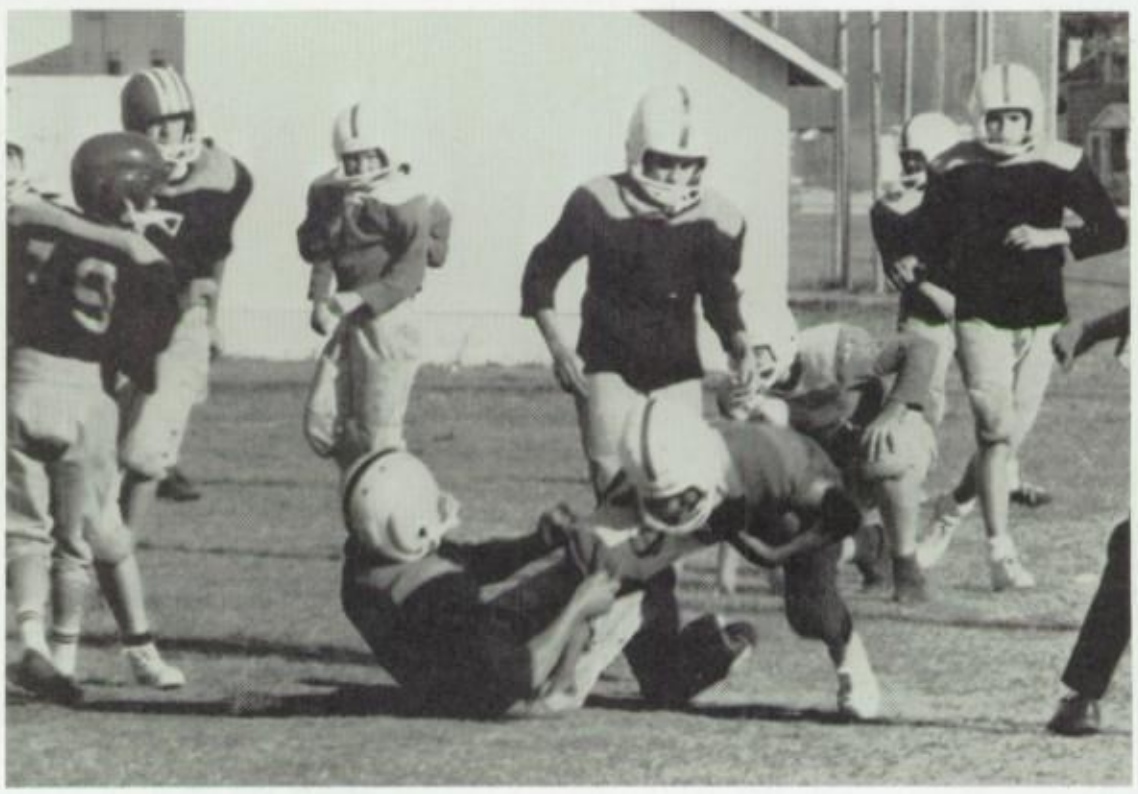
White Polar Bears vs Redskins

The Junior High intramural football program, under the direction of Rolland Huss, athletic director, was composed of 90 boys, divided into six teams.

The schedule was set up so that the teams played each Wednesday night for five weeks.

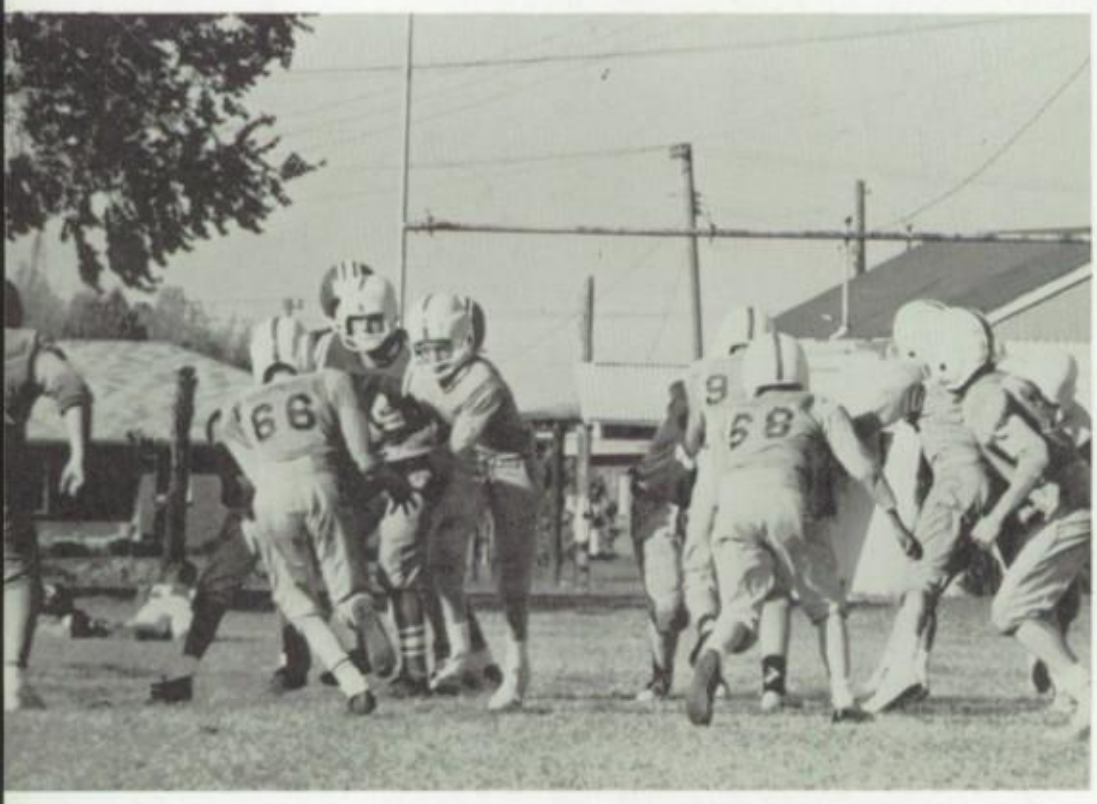
This program created a competitive spirit, developed physical ability, and built better sportsmanship.

Browns vs Green Bay Packers



Coaches were appointed and names selected for each team. They were Blue Devils coached by Al Alexander; White Polar Bears by Mel Miller and Bill Caughey; Browns by Dan Bolt and Paul Hiser; Redskins by Paul Neeb; Yellow Rams by Gary Haas and Bob Obrock; and the Green Bay Packers by Bill Bockbrader and Bob Snyder.

Yellow Rams vs Blue Devils



The Redskins were the champs with a 4-1 record.

The Eighth Graders of these teams beat Otsego's Eighth Graders 24-16, at the end of the intramural season.

The music program in the Junior High is divided into two sections - choral and instrumental.

Miss Ida Weidemann directs all instrumental work. Auditions are held early in the school year for positions in the junior high band. Sixty-seven members passed the requirements. Those who need more practice work out in the intermediate band. Each student practices daily to improve himself and the band. All are striving to be good enough to advance to the high school band.

Chorus is a requirement of all students. A select eighth grade chorus is purely voluntary. These students enjoy singing so much that they give their spare time to perfect their singing. Mrs. Jennie Hobart directs all choral work.

The Eastwood Elementary Schools opened the 1963-64 school year September 3, with an enrollment of nearly 1100 pupils in five buildings.

Forty-two teachers reported to their classrooms, greeted their eager charges, and the new school year was in progress.

Many classrooms had been redecorated, some had new furniture, and many were using new textbooks and curriculum materials.

Experimentation in the teaching of modern arithmetic, newly improved basal reading programs and unified language arts was begun.

Opportunities were offered to fifth and sixth grade pupils in the area of instrumental music. Those students interested, participated in elementary school bands. All of the children were a part of the elementary vocal music program.

One unit in the area of special education was added which helps the school to more effectively provide for the individual differences among its students.

These new programs, as well as the traditional programs, were carefully evaluated by teachers and administratiors to insure a sound educational program for the elementary students of Eastwood.

Advertising, the last section in the annual, is ironically the first to be collected and assembled. Solicitation for the advertising begins during summer vacation and continues until the quota has been reached.

Through the benefit of informing the public about his product, the businessman supports the yearbook and makes its publication possible.

Like any other effective business organization, the business staff of the AQUILA sets up a budget on which it must operate, and advertising is as essential to the fulfillment of that budget as the subscription sales.

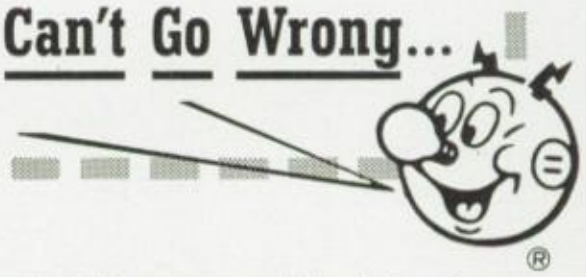
You Can't Go Wrong...



Nobody should ever consider his education complete. You can't go wrong by getting as much schooling as possible. So strongly does Toledo Edison feel about this that we finance three scholarships a year at the University of Toledo.

Lots of college graduates find Toledo Edison a good place to work. Investor-owned electric companies offer interesting careers in many fields. You might want to look into this.
